

Young Girl with two Puppies Unknown (English School)

1890's
Oil on Board
30 x 19cm

As we turn the corner on to the last wall of displays within the Assembly Rooms we are greeted with a two entirely contrasting paintings.

The small painting above provides us with a sentimental portrait of a young girl standing in a doorway holding up two puppies. Whether she is the daughter of the master of the house or one of the young house servants is unclear but perhaps her smock and what looks to be a rear door to the property suggest the latter.